

RUTGERS

Department of Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering

SLAAM

STUDENT LEARNING AND ACHIEVEMENT AEROSPACE & MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

Rutgers Mechanical & Aerospace Engineering Targets Academically Talented High School Students

The Student Learning and Achievement Aerospace and Mechanical (SLAAM) Engineering Summer Academy is a non-residential summer program aimed at academically talented and motivated high school students. Apply online: <http://mae.rutgers.edu/student-learning-and-achievement-aerospace-and-mechanical-slaam-engineering-summer-academy>.

- SLAAM provides opportunities for students to pursue their intellectual curiosity and meet others who share their engineering interests and abilities.
- SLAAM is a selective program for high-achieving high school students who wish to engage in meaningful research and professional development at Rutgers'.
- SLAAM focuses on research and applied work within the Mechanical and Aerospace Engineering Department.
- SLAAM fellows participate in supervised research and learning experiences that are developed and taught by Rutgers Engineering faculty & graduate student mentors.

What you need to apply?

- 2 letters of recommendation: 1 from a Math teacher and 1 from a Science/Engineering Teacher
- Transcript or Report Card from School
- 2 Essays

