PRINCIPAL'S UPDATE

We are closing out the month of September, but moving quickly into October. At this point the students and teachers are in full swing and delving into their studies. Our Personal Growth Period (PGP) is providing students with the necessary resources to ensure that they are able to excel in their academics. Each day during periods 5 & 6 students are able to attend a math lab, writing lab and a science lab which are staffed with certified faculty. Whether they want a quiet place for homework, or need assistance with a new topic, they are able to attend and get the necessary help to ensure they remain in good academic standing. Our seniors are able to meet with colleges and universities that are scheduled for presentations during that time. School counselors are available to assist students with college applications, recommendation letters, and college essays. This time is a gift for our entire student body; encourage your child to attend these important offerings.

I also want to remind parents to ensure they have access to Genesis through the Parent Portal. This allows you

STILL UNDEFEATED

Football moved to 2 and 1 with an impressive win over Dover. In that game, Senior QB Wilden Germain had a 98 yard touchdown Run. Come join the team, the cheerleaders and the rest of the Redwing family as we host Lincoln on Friday, September 30th at JFK Stadium -- 7pm start.

Girls Soccer remains undefeated at 7 and 0, with an impressive victory over Union City. Senior goalkeeper Jasmine Erichsen has only allowed 1 goal this year, while seniors Ali and Jaeda Henriquez have been impressive offensively and defensively.

Boys Soccer enjoyed a little hot streak of its own with a tie vs Snyder, followed by wins vs Marist and McNair.

Girls Volleyball continue to battle and improve with every match, led by seniors Kaylah Fermaint, Kiara Muniz, Akilah Milo, Ericka Melara, and Havana Luis.

These two soccer posters were made by Evance Desriviere, a student in Ms. Malenda's Advanced Journalism and Graphics class. Students will begin working on sports posters, as well as interview techniques and writing in the upcoming weeks. They hope to get an in-depth exclusive with the undefeated girls soccer team.

With Style

It's all about making the ordinary look extraordinary in Ms. Malenda's Advanced Journalism and Graphics class. This week students studied different photographic points of view, including: bird's eye, worm hole, natural frames and leading lines. Armed with cameras, they took to the halls of the high school and took pictures using these POVs as frames of reference. Then they came back to class and used different Photoshop techniques, including style swatches, font styles, and lighting effects to produce the extraordinary images you see here. To the left and right below, art by Alyssa Notaro. Far below, art by Adrian Rey.

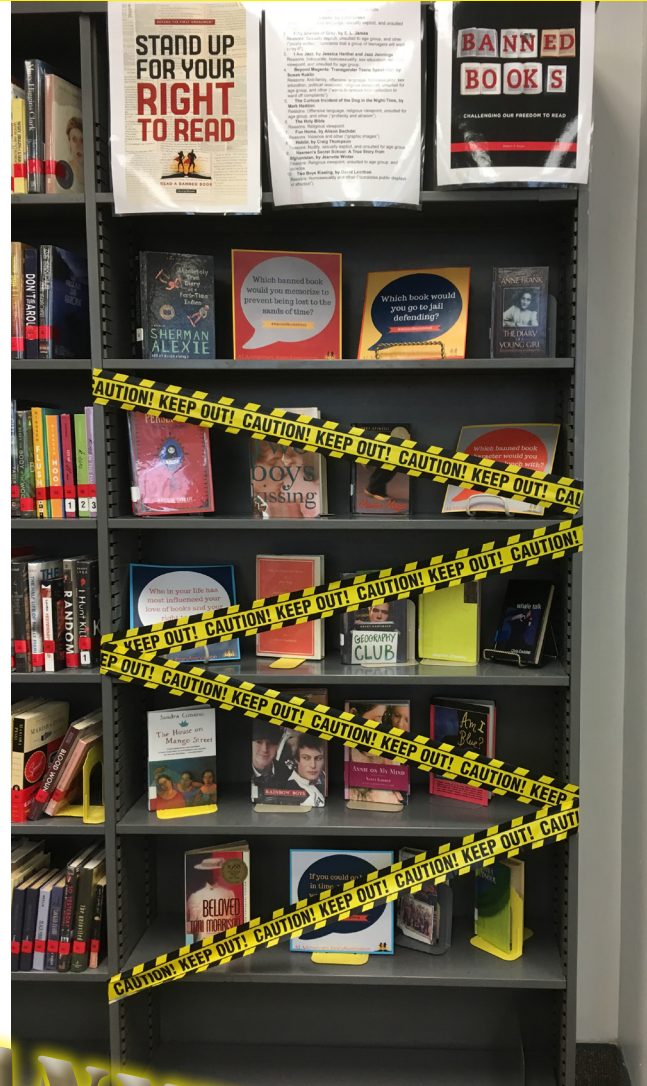

It's Banned Books Week and the library is educating students about popular titles that have been "banned" (challenged or removed) from schools and libraries. Banned Books Week was launched in 1982 in response to a sudden surge in the number of challenges to books in schools, bookstores and libraries. More than 11,300 books have been challenged since 1982 according to the American Library Association. The 10 most challenged titles of 2015 included popular YA titles such as:

1. Looking for Alaska, by John Green
Reasons: Offensive language, sexually explicit, and unsuited for age group.
2. Beyond Magenta: Transgender Teens Speak Out, by Susan Kuklin
Reasons: Anti-family, offensive language, homosexuality, sex education, political viewpoint, religious viewpoint, unsuited for age group, and other ("wants to remove from collection to ward off complaints").
3. The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time, by Mark Haddon
Reasons: Offensive language, religious viewpoint, unsuited for age group, and other ("profanity and atheism").
4. Habibi, by Craig Thompson
Reasons: Nudity, sexually explicit, and unsuited for age group.
5. Two Boys Kissing, by David Levithan
Reasons: Homosexuality and other ("condones public displays of affection").

In addition to the recent challenges, over time many a classic has faced censorship, including

- The Great Gatsby*, by F. Scott Fitzgerald
- The Catcher in the Rye*, by J.D. Salinger
- The Grapes of Wrath*, by John Steinbeck
- To Kill a Mockingbird*, by Harper Lee
- The Color Purple*, by Alice Walker
- Ulysses*, by James Joyce
- Beloved*, by Toni Morrison
- The Lord of the Flies*, by William Golding
- 1984, by George Orwell

Principal's Update

to monitor your child's progress throughout the year to ensure they are in good academic standing. If you need assistance with Genesis, please reach out to us at 201-356-3712.

This week we hosted our Back to School Night and I was pleased to see so many parents in attendance. It is important that parents have the opportunity to meet with teachers, and also hear about what their child is studying in class. If you were unable to make it you can always reach out to a guidance counselor to set up a meeting.

Attendance, Attendance, Attendance..... students must be in school! It is imperative that students come to school every day. In order to learn, students must be present. My attendance team will be monitoring student attendance and will be setting up meetings with parents when students hit eight absences. The state requires that all students be in school 163 days of every year. When a student hits 18 absences, they are at risk of losing credit for that year. It is imperative that you work with your child to ensure that they attend school.

Culinary is Cooking!

This week Culinary II has worked on creating some snacks for Back to School night. For the middle school, we made some sugar cookies and a cinnamon spiced cake garnished with chocolate glaze and sprinkles. For the high school, we decided to have the cookies and cake, but wanted something a little more. The students made a white bread dough that they turned into mini buns. We decided to have two types of sandwiches: a chicken cranberry salad and a Gouda (cheese) and caramelized onion, both; were delicious.

Keep up to date on all our important & exciting news!

YEARBOOK 2017

Tricks of the Trade: Mad Men Style

Students in Ms. Malenda's Media, News and Graphics class are finishing up their unit on advertising by creating an original ad of their own. Their ads must include different advertising techniques, such as pathos, logos or ethos and further specific persuasive elements such as bandwagon, avant-garde, plain folks, or patriotism, etc. Students learned that color is also an effective tool in advertising and they chose their color schemes based on psychological studies. In the end they used their newly learned basic skills in Photoshop (including cutting, placing, text, FX, layer adjustment, transform and duplication) to create their awesome ads! From top to bottom, Gabriella Lugo, Manny Munoz & Justin Sene.
